Graduate Course “Get your paper published”

This very popular hands-on academic publication course guides participants through the journal publication process with their own contribution. Back for the fifth time 2020, upon request, with a program also for senior researchers planned at session 2 (September). Course within Produktion2030, collaboration with ScAIEM.

Target group

Junior academic researchers (PhD students) with the ambition to publish in major academic journals, to support doctoral studies in the production, innovation and/or industrial engineering and management areas, and

Senior researchers (PhD supervisors) to benefit from discussions about journal publications in these areas.

Context

The course is part of the program Produktion2030, and is offered within ScAIEM the Scandinavian Academy of Industrial Engineering and Management.

Content

The course will have three face to face meetings of 2-3 days each, and builds on participants' own reading/writing assignments in-between the meetings:

Learning objectives

At the end of the series of workshops the participant (1) has developed a thorough understanding of the structure of academic papers, (2) has trained skills in writing papers for major academic journals, (3) has acquired skills to review academic papers, and (4) has completed a paper ready for submission to an academic journal.

Requirements

- The participant has finished a part of the studies about which a full paper can be written (to be decided with their supervisor).
- Before each workshop the participant completes assignments about preparing and/or writing sections of the paper, and peer reviewing another participant's paper.
- The participant has a supervisor, or co-author, who is knowledgeable about the paper's topic and with whom the participant has a meeting at least once before each workshop.

Trainer

Eelko Huizingh, who has been active in academic publishing for over 30 years. He is a prolific writer with over 350 publications, including various papers in top academic journals, and editor of 20+ Special Issues of academic journals. He is founder and CEO of Huizingh Academic Development, which offers academic writing and academic research workshops, and academic coaching sessions. Dr. Huizingh is affiliated with the University of Groningen (the Netherlands), and is Vice President Scientific Affairs of ISPIM (the International Society for Professional Innovation Management). His ISPIM duties include Head of the Scientific Panel for reviewing conference submissions, and Head of the ISPIM-Wiley Innovation Management Dissertation Award Panel. Dr. Huizingh has given over 70 workshops and seminars on academic writing in more than 20 countries. These events were attended by over 1,000 participants from 50+ countries.
